DAD - COUNSELOR - GUY WHO TALKS ABOUT APPS

Ryan Klingensmith is an experienced, highly sought-after speaker who has presented internationally on the intersection of youth, social media, and mental health. His enlightening and visually impactful presentations prepare adults for engaging with today's digitally-connected youth. These presentations are vital for anyone involved in a child's life. Attendees learn of real-life examples and practical tips in a humorous but informative manner to lead our kids through this often digitally risky world, one that is vastly different from the world in which we grew up.

Ryan's presentations are informed by his over 25 years of experience working directly with children and teens as a licensed professional counselor and his observations of how changing digital technologies have impacted how youth learn about mental health and help-seeking behaviors. He has a first-hand look at the struggles and pressures that smartphones and social media place upon youth. His presentations inspire attendees to look at the digital world differently and provide them the confidence to teach youth how to be responsible digital leaders.
